A: You could probably use CalDav / CardDav to synchronize your calendar, or something, with Microsoft Exchange. I recently created a desktop application using CalDav as an alternative to MS Exchange, which I really hate. The application is free and available on GitHub ( Other than that, looking at the calendar app you posted above, you could probably use Google Calendar for your needs. If you have to use a third party tool, you could also consider using one of the applications below. A: I don't believe there is an open source option for this type of calendar, as there is for google calendar/exchange or office365. A public website will not be able to share this type of information, so you'd have to build your own. { "extends": "./tsconfig.build.json", "compilerOptions": { "declarationDir": "../..mode_modules/wix-ui-fabric/dist/src", "declarationMap": true, "outDir": "../..dist", "skipLibCheck": true }, "include": ["**/*"] } 09e8f5149f
