Viewing and Managing Your Images When you open Photoshop for the first time, you see the Welcome Screen shown in Figure 1-1. FIGURE 1-1: Choose Window⇒Photoshop CS6 from the menu bar. This screen is the Photoshop Launcher, which you see when you first open the program. You can also launch Photoshop from the Windows task bar and, in Windows 7, from the Start menu. (In Windows 8, the program is automatically launched from the Start screen as long as you have it on your Start screen.) The options on the Welcome Screen let you customize the program's look and feel. After opening, Photoshop displays your image on the left side of the screen in the default size, which is the best that you can do in the program. You can resize the image, but you can't rotate it like you can in a photo editing program such as Microsoft's PictureIt, which is discussed later in this chapter. To display a different view of your image, click View or press Ctrl+1 (the first letter of the word View on the keyboard). You then see a new screen where you have several different ways to view the image, as shown in Figure 1-2. Ligand-mediated posttranscriptional gene silencing in plants. Small interfering RNAs (siRNAs) are major mediators of natural transposon silencing in plant cells, and recent data suggest that the siRNAs may also be involved in the RNA interference mechanism. The first convincing evidence of RNAi-mediated regulation of endogenous gene expression was presented in plants. In this case, a specific siRNA molecule was associated with the fate of a transcribed reporter gene in Nicotiana benthamiana in vivo. The data are consistent with the hypothesis that RNAi processes may function as endogenous gene silencing mechanism and that siRNA could be a major component of plant RNAi pathways. The mechanism of small RNA-mediated gene silencing in plants needs to be elucidated and further research may allow our understanding of the molecular processes of RNA interference in eukaryotic organisms.

Q: Execute javascript function on load I am using the quick-edit form from this site to create a form which inserts a link to a document into the TinyMCE text editor. The problem is that I want to be able to detect when the user has finished editing the document and save it. When I use the save content button, it doesn't execute the insertLink function, only the save button. I tried including the insertLink function using onload function `insertLink() { tinyMCE.execCommand("mceInsertLink", false, ""); }` This still doesn't execute the function. `function insertLink() { tinyMCE.execCommand("mceInsertLink", false, ""); }` `window.onload = insertLink;` This doesn't seem to execute the function either. I think that I can use the save button event to execute it. But what if the user navigates away from the page after saving? Is there a way to execute it after the user has finished making edits? A: I think you'll have to try something like this: `var mceInsertLink = function(e) { var element = e.domNode; var item = $(element).data("editsave");`

David Aldridge, USA TODAY Sports, December 21, 2014 There might be no sure-fire way to get through the new year with a crystal ball; few teams know what's in store for 2015. The best predictor, experts agree, is the draft lottery. Based on ESPN.com's latest odds, teams with the worst records in 2014 will most likely go No. 1 in the lottery and land one of the top picks in this year's draft. The No. 1 overall pick is expected to be Houston's star power big man Karl-Anthony Towns, one of several college players ranked high on multiple scouting services' top-10 prospects. On Sunday, USA TODAY Sports will release its new rankings of the top 100 players in the draft, with Towns ranked fourth, two spots ahead of Oklahoma's Anthony Davis at No. 6, fellow freshman Jahlil Okafor at No. 9 and Duke's Justise Winslow at No. 10. "With everything that's going on in the NBA right now, the draft just seems to be a perfect fit for where the game is going," Okafor told the media in early December. "It's the most exciting time of year and the chance to win your first NBA title is really big. Not a lot of guys get that chance. So I'm really excited." The Warriors are perhaps the top team in the lottery, but it's not as simple as saying San Antonio is going to get No. 1. It could land the worst record and end up with the No. 2 overall pick behind Boston, which is No. 3. It's possible Dallas, Minnesota and Memphis, among others, could all jump out of the No. 4 spot and end up with the top pick. Here's a look at how the lottery could shake out: Click the image to the left to see the full list of the 100 players ranked by some projections, as well as a full explanation of the scoring system behind USA TODAY Sports' rankings. TOP 5 PLAYERS: Towns, Winslow and Okafor (DraftExpress.com) Davis, Nerlens Noel and Joel Embiid are the top-ranked NBA prospects. USA TODAY Sports' No. 1 overall prospect is Towns, while Noel and Embiid round out the top-5. OLYMPIC HYDRO: Summitt's success in making London a hub for women's basketball
