windows users: if you opted for the zip version, its recommended that you unzip the downloaded file using the built-in windows unzipping utility, rather than a third-party tool, and to not attempt to launch mapforge from within the uncompressed zip file. dont install mapforge in your programs directory, as the app needs to write files to disk and windows doesnt like that happening in the programs folder. if you want to launch mapforge from your desktop, dont simply move the executable there. the executable needs to reside in the same folder it comes in, so that it can access the support files, xtras, etc. instead, drag an alias/shortcut of the mapforge app to your desktop. select properties on the mapforge.exe file and set the program to always run as an administrator. if you use windows defender or the like, be sure to allow mapforge access to the internet, particularly if the app appears to lock up during launch. if mapforge wont launch on your pc without locking up or quitting, see the section called windows-specific incompatibility discovered in this kickstarter update. if mapforge is performing sluggishly (users have mentioned a lag of several seconds between when you make an edit and the edit occurs), its probable that you have an nvidia video card with nvidia experience, and it is using a gamer driver. switch to using the studio driver, and the sluggishness should disappear.
